Echoes of Election.

He could not sing the old songs,
Nor even whistle them,
For he had run for office,
But was, alas! a Dem.

It looks as if it were going to be a Democratic winter also.

The cuckoo organs are all sighing,
"It is only an off year." The worst thing about it for Democrats is it is so "far off."

The sudden cold snap right after the election made life burdensome to the political grasshoppers on their journey up Salt River.

The Democratic corpse will assemble again in Washington in December and arrange for a final resting place for the remains. "Friends will please omit flowers."

When Republicans and honest Democrats begin to overhaul the books in New York city just note how quickly Tammany will want "a milder climate" on "account of health."

A Democratic contemporary has discovered that "the Democratic party is looking up." It is in position to look no other way, but its eyes are too badly bungled to do much "looking up."

While the President shot and skinned Maryland squirrels for meat, the people slaughtered and skinned the entire Democratic party for the peace and happiness of the country. It was the grandest hunt of the century.

Where now are the prophets that two years ago pronounced "the Republican party dead and buried by Democrats"? The saviors of the Republic and the Union are not the kind of people to stay dead, as the facts show.

In Memoriam.

The portals of the Lodge on High have opened to receive our beloved brother John D. Jones, one who passed from among us and who by the exercise of our beloved Order through long years of earthly pilgrimage has become worthy to share its joys and enter into its glories. Time will not permit us to detail his worth in these resolutions, nor has your committee the ability justly so to do. What has been written by him is far more worthy than any words of ours may picture, on every page of his daily life for half a century in this community in places of trust, in posts of honor, in the precincts of home, in all his relations with his fellow-men.

He has so demeaned himself as to exact whatever station he has been called to fill and left his name, not alone to his family, but to all who knew him a loving memory.

Gone indeed but to us he has left the example of his tireless energy and the inspirations of charity, love and truth moulded into daily acts rather than spoken in idle words.

His seat is vacant in our lodge room but the example and the spirit of his life are rich legacies to his brethren with whom he has been so closely affiliated. Therefore be it

Resolved, That Advance Lodge, No. 110, IOOF, extend to the family of our deceased brother its warmest sympathy in their hours of bereavement and affliction.

That a copy hereof be furnished the widow and family of the deceased, printed in THE YALE EXPOSITOR and spread at large upon the minutes of this lodge.

That our lodge room in respect of his memory be draped in mourning as directed by the laws of our order.

W. B. SAVILLE, Sec'y.

They're Coming Our Way.

We are having a regular Republican cyclone kind of a rush just now. Its all on account of our recent trip down east where they are now getting their factories ready for making spring goods and want some room worse than woolen goods, and knowing we would have one of our regular old time Michigan winters, your humble servant bought till he could buy no more, hardly had money enough to get home with—but, what is raising such a dust now in Port Huron is the way we are retailing these goods. It's mostly Ladies' and Children's Underwear and Hosiery. Do you take the hint? You can save your fare from Yale on the first $2 purchase. Boice's.

For Sale.

One Jewett's Triumph Range 8 holes with shelf, for wood or coal, good as new. One spiral drum, McArthur's make, used one winter, also one small heating stove.

Having put a furnace in my house have no more use for above articles. Will sell them cheap for cash only. Can be seen at my house foot of Main Street, 27th W. H. GOWAN, N. D.

In these hard times a majority of our people are practicing a more rigid economy than for many years. Nearly every family has a supply of old garments or goods, which can be used to advantage in such times and made to look almost like new by coloring over with Magic Dyes. You can depend on them for fast colors that will not croak or fade out, like most other dyes, and, unlike other brands, nearly all the colors will dye cotton, wool, silk or linen with same package (instead of requiring a separate package for cottons) which renders them far superior for coloring mixed goods. Simple directions. Large 10 cent packages of Magic Dyes, Yale.

The Pupils' Reading Circle.

Undoubtedly, The Pupils' Reading Circle is destined to become a permanent affair in St. Clair county. The good work was fairly begun last season and we are determined to continue it until a prosperous circle is organized in every district.

The object of starting these Circles is twofold; firstly to make the acquisition of knowledge pleasing and attractive; secondly, to cultivate a taste for good reading among our young friends.

Now, in the schoolroom the daily routine of study soon becomes wearisome unless the teacher is specially gifted in her manner of presenting subjects. The work coming in monotonous sameness makes Jack a dull boy. After a day in school his nature demands recreation. Let him have it, but turn it to his profit. Give him this supplementary reading in pleasing variety and attractive shape and he will soon compass a wide range of topics, glean useful information at every step. Meanwhile, his first thirst for knowledge increases until he becomes a student. Being thus diverted he escapes the blighting effects of bad company, his evenings are spent at home and with scarcely any parental restraint he develops into the upright and respected citizen.

But some parents will say "such talk is all nonsense. It is enough for my boys and girls to learn to read, write and cipher. This extra reading cuts no figure." Are you sure of that? There is nothing right. The majority of these young people are bound to have reading of some kind, either pure or impure. This trashy, vicious reading is seen almost everywhere; the five-cent and ten-cent novels, the sensational story papers whose heroes are criminals that should be serving time. No wonder there are so many Jesse Jameses, so many outlaws. Such literature has a corrupt influence over the character.

Just here comes in the quaintest part of the teacher's work. It is for her to help root out the bad and substitute therefor the good and useful, thus slowly but surely developing the germs of good citizenship. The safety of the Republic demands that these children of so many nationalities should be Americanized and where can this be done so efficiently as in the public schools? It is really the teacher's place and duty to open up to her pupils this world of beauty, point out what is grand, curious and interesting in nature, and illustrious in patriotism. Who can estimate the benefits of such influences. Surely their value cannot be reckoned in dollars and cents. Let every teacher be wide-awake enough to lead in this work, remembering that she is building for eternity and hence should use first-class material.

Membership cards of a different color for each grade will be issued and a badge of a neat and tasty design will be furnished each actual member. These will be given free with the books which may be obtained at any bookstore in Port Huron. Every pupil having finished the course will be awarded a Certificate of Completion signed by the State Secretary.

ADULTERATED WINE

Is injurious, but nothing gives strength, and tones up the stomach like a pure old port wine. Royal Ruby Port, is called for its royal taste and ruby color, is on account of its purity, age and strength, particularly adapted for invalids, convalescents and the aged. Sold only in bottles (never in bulk) while cheap wine is sold by the gallon and gives a larger profit to the seller but less to the user.
